REPEAL THIS LAW.

The farce of secret execution has been the State's prisons. It was introduced at Windsor Castle during the banquet. Auburn. It has been reproduced, with a a multiplication of principal actors, at Sing Sing. . And in both cases the same death-chambers, in that they were quickly gathered by expert newspaper men and surread wide before the subject. There was no reason in it. Just simple deprayity so the gun's part. spread wide before the public.

To do this work of exposition was the duty of the newspapers. They performed it unflinchingly. In performing at they defied an express provision of State iaw, but one which they believe and know to be un. The Aronsons are going to fight, and timing of soft this silk, which gives it a little their scheme has not as yet been told. It is the shelter of glass and a stage erected directly over the stage proper. The glass garden thus obtained will be handsomely deco rated, and will be used as a care chantant. A specialty performance will be given there, and in this way there will be two "shows" every night at the Casino-comic opera in the theatre proper and specialties in the roof incleaure. It will easily be seen that the Casino present time the delightful concerts on the roof have brought compensation for various indifferent operas, and the Summer has conequently always been profitable to the Casino. The new roof theatre will, however,

An advertisement that appeared yesterday ran as follows: "Wanted, for a responsible company, a young and handsome ingenue, with a child from five to seven years old." Think of the world of disenchantment contained in those few words; of the simple, gorgling, girlish creature, who will appear in short dresses and gushing juvenility as the ingenuous legible of some "responsible" play, and yet be the mommer of a prattiling, growing Fauntleroy;

The unexpected reappearance of Carmencita at Koster & Blai's has been welcomed in a most extravagant manner. The lovely Graene could scarcely feel compilmented. The apologies that were untered Monday night for the absence of the odalisque were unhedeed, and when the Spanish dancer was seen there wore loud cries of "Senorital" "Carinencital" Men and women rose and shouted. Carmencita, who does not know her own Ternschortan greatness, appeared pleased. The popularity of this young woman is truly remarkable.
